Pt III, Line 4a: Women's Resource Center to End Domestic Violence ("WRCDV") provides comprehensive, trauma-informed services to survivors of domestic violence and sexual assault and their children. WRCDV works to meet survivors' immediate safety needs while also providing the advocacy, resources, and long-term support necessary to help individuals and families heal, rebuild their lives. Annually, WRCDV serves more than 9,000 women, children, and other survivors through crisis intervention, emergency shelter, legal advocacy, housing assistance, sexual assault services, children's programming, prevention education, and community-based support. During 2025, WRCDV expanded its mission and service capacity through the addition of sexual assault response and support services. This expansion created a more comprehensive continuum of care for individuals affected by domestic violence, sexual assault, stalking, dating violence, and related forms of interpersonal violence. 24-Hour Crisis Hotline: WRCDV operates a crisis hotline 24 hours a day, seven days a week. Trained advocates provide confidential crisis intervention, emotional support, safety planning, information about available options, and referrals to community resources. Hotline advocates help callers assess immediate risks, identify strategies for increasing safety, and connect with emergency shelter, legal advocacy, medical services, counseling, housing assistance, and other resources. The hotline is frequently the first point of contact for survivors seeking help. Advocates respond with compassion and respect while allowing each survivor to make informed decisions based on individual circumstances, priorities, and goals. Services are also available to family members, friends, service providers, and community members seeking information about domestic violence or sexual assault. Emergency Safe House: WRCDV's safe house provides secure, confidential, temporary housing for survivors of domestic violence and their children who cannot safely remain in their homes. Residents receive shelter, meals, essential personal items, transportation assistance, safety planning, advocacy, and referrals to additional services. Advocates work individually with residents to identify immediate and long-term goals, which may include securing permanent housing, increasing income, pursuing education or employment, accessing medical or mental health care, addressing legal concerns, and strengthening family stability. The program helps survivors reclaim their strengths and make their own decisions in an environment that promotes dignity, safety, healing, and self-determination. Sexual Assault Crisis Intervention and Advocacy: WRCDV provides trauma-informed crisis intervention and advocacy to individuals who have experienced sexual assault. Advocates offer confidential emotional support, safety planning, information about survivors' rights, and assistance understanding medical, legal, and reporting options. Services are survivor-centered and respect each individual's right to determine whether to seek medical care, participate in a forensic examination, report an assault to law enforcement, or pursue other legal remedies. Advocates may accompany survivors during medical care and forensic examinations, provide support during interactions with law enforcement and the criminal justice system, and connect survivors with counseling, legal assistance, victim compensation resources, emergency housing, and other community services. Advocacy is available regardless of when the assault occurred. Sexual Assault Forensic Medical Services: WRCDV provides access to specialized forensic medical services for individuals who have experienced sexual assault. Sexual Assault Nurse Examiners and other specially trained medical professionals provide compassionate, trauma-informed care in a confidential and supportive setting. Depending on the survivor's needs and choices, services may include medical assessment, treatment of injuries, collection and preservation of forensic evidence, documentation, information regarding sexually transmitted infection prevention, follow-up recommendations, and referrals for continuing medical care. Services are provided with informed consent, and survivors may receive medical care and information even when they do not wish to make an immediate report to law enforcement. Sexual Assault Follow-Up and Support: WRCDV provides follow-up advocacy to help survivors address ongoing emotional, medical, legal, financial, housing, and safety-related concerns. Advocates assist with referrals to trauma-focused counseling, medical follow-up, legal services, victim compensation, protective orders, workplace resources, and other supportive services. The goal is to help survivors regain a sense of safety, control, and connection while moving forward at their own pace. Housing and Permanent Housing Support: WRCDV assists survivors who are homeless or at risk of homelessness because of domestic violence or sexual assault. Housing advocates help survivors locate safe and affordable housing, overcome barriers to leasing, communicate with landlords, and develop plans for long-term housing stability. Depending on eligibility and available resources, services may include housing search assistance, rapid re-housing, transitional housing, rental and utility assistance, security deposits, moving expenses, furniture, basic household items, and other stabilization support. Survivors also receive advocacy intended to increase financial and personal stability through education, employment, health stabilization, financial management, transportation, child care, and connection to public benefits. Legal Advocacy: WRCDV's legal advocates help survivors understand and navigate legal systems that may be unfamiliar, intimidating, or difficult to access. Advocates provide information about legal options and assist survivors with applications for Temporary Protective Orders and other available remedies. Legal advocates may provide court accompaniment, assistance preparing for hearings, referrals to attorneys, and information related to criminal warrants, child custody, child support, housing, immigration, victim compensation, and related concerns. Advocates help survivors communicate with courts, prosecutors, law enforcement agencies, and other justice-system partners while supporting informed decision-making based on each survivor's circumstances and safety needs. Community-Based Advocacy: Survivors who do not reside in the safe house may receive individualized advocacy through WRCDV's community-based programs. Services may include crisis intervention, safety planning, emotional support, housing assistance, legal advocacy, financial assistance, referrals to counseling and health care, transportation support, and assistance accessing public benefits or other community resources. Services are voluntary and emphasize survivors' strengths, autonomy, dignity, and informed decision-making. Support Groups and Emotional Support: WRCDV offers opportunities for survivors to receive support, information, and connection from others with similar experiences. Support groups provide a confidential environment in which participants can discuss the effects of abuse, learn about healthy relationships, strengthen coping skills, and reduce isolation. Programming may include information about trauma, safety, boundaries, self-care, healthy communication, emotional wellness, and community resources. Child and Family Advocacy: Children and youth exposed to domestic violence or sexual assault receive developmentally appropriate advocacy and supportive services. Children residing in the safe house are provided with a safe and nurturing environment where they can receive individual attention, therapy, participate in group activities, and connect with a community of support. Programs help children identify and express feelings, develop healthy communication skills, manage anger and frustration, practice peaceful conflict resolution, and understand that the violence they witnessed or experienced was not their fault. Child and family advocates also work with parents to strengthen family relationships, support

Supervised Visitation and Safe Exchange: Nia's Place Supervised Visitation and Exchange Center provides supervised visitation and safe exchange services for families affected by domestic violence. Trained staff monitor visits and exchanges according to program guidelines and applicable court orders. Dating Violence and Sexual Violence Prevention: WRCDV provides prevention education addressing dating violence, domestic violence, sexual assault, consent, healthy relationships, boundaries, equality, and respect. Programs are presented to students in elementary schools, middle schools, high schools, colleges, and universities, as appropriate for the age and setting of the participants. Prevention programming helps young people recognize warning signs of abusive behavior, understand the importance of consent and mutual respect, learn how to support a friend, and identify resources available when violence occurs. Community Education, Outreach, and Professional Training: WRCDV provides education and training to schools, universities, health care providers, law enforcement agencies, courts, faith communities, civic organizations, employers, social service agencies, and other community partners throughout metropolitan Atlanta. Training topics may include domestic violence, sexual assault, trauma-informed response, survivor safety, stalking, healthy relationships, consent, victim rights, available resources, and appropriate referral practices. WRCDV believes that ending domestic violence and sexual assault requires not only responding to individual crises but also changing the community conditions that allow interpersonal violence to continue. Through direct services, advocacy, education, prevention, and collaboration, the organization works to create a community in which survivors are believed, supported, protected, and empowered.
